PADDY, WE'VE GOT YOU COVERED

For those struggling to find accommodation for this year's Web Summit, taking place in Dublin between 3rd and 5th November, look no further because leading hostel accommodation platform, Hostelworld, has you covered.

With private rooms starting from just 27.50€, and dorms from 14.00€ per person, visitors to Dublin can avoid up to a 600% hike in rates from hotels.

A number of stylish and centrally located hostels sit less than 5km away from Ballsbridge.

On top of that, WIFI comes free, so wherever you are travelling over from, you can stay connected whilst kicking back after a long day.

Otto Rosenberger, CMO of Hostelworld said: "These price hikes are a joke. Up to 600% price hikes just because there is demand for the beds? Don't be taken for a ride, look at alternatives. Hostels are stylish and social hubs that encourage networking, so save money, and come and meet people at the same time. In fact - let us know where you're staying and we'll join you for beers in the bar."

To book your Web Summit accommodation, check out our Dublin hostels.

Generator Hostel

Abbey Court

Sky Backpackers